Current Work

- 2017-2025, Botanist, Butler Conservation Fund, Great Neck, NY. Write, design, and contribute photographs to 500-page book, Black River Flora & Field Guide, Butler Conservation Natural History Guide Series, to be published March, 2025. Performed vascular plant surveys of the "Peninsula tract" (168 acres in Williamsburg County, SC) and the "Swampside tract" (1040 acres in Georgetown County, SC); collect and process voucher specimens (over 1500 to date) for the Richard D. Porcher, Jr. Herbarium, The Citadel; collect GPS data, maintain spreadsheet for herbarium labels and species checklist, create maps; advise on conservation practices, preservation of rare plant species and habitats, ecologically appropriate landscaping, wildflower restoration, longleaf pine restoration, and burn regimes; create educational material including reports, install botanical signs; document flora with photography and video; report rare species data to USFWS and SCDNR; contribute to iNaturalist.
- 2014-2025, Technical assistant, writer and photographer, Richard D. Porcher, Jr., Professor Emeritus of Botany, The Citadel, Charleston, SC. Create maps and graphics for publication, overlay map data from historic plats, assist with slideshow presentations and multimedia support, edit photographs and illustrations, and contribute to upcoming book about protecting the rare species of South Carolina, with an emphasis on coastal species.
- 2015-2025, Freelance botanist and landscape advisor, Charleston, SC. Consult on vegetable gardens, public gardens, and private urban and rural yards including creation of maintenance plans for gardens, leading botanical tours, educating volunteers, and identifying and propagating native species. Projects have included an urban pollinator garden at 1020 King Street, First African Evangelical Church, Enough Pie, and John L. Dart Library (2017-2024), revegetation of a collapsed bank on James Island Creek for Mary Edna Fraser, workshops at the Romney Urban Garden, lectures at John L. Dart Library on foraging, attending public hearings on tree ordinances, reporting trees slated for development to Charleston's Board of Architectural Review.
- 2020-2024 Botanist, Open Space Institute, New York, NY. Toured Black Mingo Creek with Ben Schools on 8/22/24. Prepared a habitat assessment and cursory floral survey of Waties Island, SC (May 2024), with field assistant Erin Donmoyer, and contributed specimens to Coastal Carolina University Herbarium. Prepared four botanical surveys on the Black River which are part of a new aquatic state park (2022-2023), with Donmoyer, using iNaturalist, contributed botanical collections to the University of South Carolina Herbarium; contributed data to facilitate special use permits for plant collection by indigenous people, and documented of contemporary ethnobotany with video, audio, and text; see Cheryl Cail (Waccamaw Indian People) interview, Part 1 & Part 2, highlighting the beauty and threats facing the Black River. Prepared a habitat assessment and cursory floral survey of the 933-acre "Mead" tract on the Black River (May-June 2020). Prepared a habitat assessment and cursory floral survey of 3,924-acre tract on the Santee River (May 2021). Created a list of priority vascular plant species for each site, including rare or unusual plants found, and characterization of plant communities present. Reported rare plant data to SCDNR and USFWS.
